

Hello Charger Families!

November 20, 2020

This week the Thames Valley community focused on how we can all Listen, Learn and Act against Racism.

Recognizing bullying behaviors in others is quite easy, but are we able to see those behaviors in yourself?

Have you ever called someone names? Physically hurt someone? Used your size to intimidate or threaten others? Made fun of people you perceive as different? Made fun of a person's culture of religion? Laughed at someone because they have a disability? Said nasty things about another person's weight, hair, skin colour or clothes? Taken someone's belongings? Made fun of a person's sexuality? Spread rumors about someone? Said nasty things behind someone's back? Excluded someone from your group on purpose? Sent a nasty or threatening email or text? Posted or shared nasty comments about someone on a social networking site?

If you can say yes to any of these questions, then you were probably involved in or displaying bullying behaviour towards someone and made them feel badly.

Let's learn from these experiences and pledge to:

- *call someone their name - no mean nicknames.
- *have kind hands and feet that do not kick or hurt
- *ask someone to play when they look lonely
- *use kind words
- *spend time with others who may look, think or act differently than us.

Please continue this conversation at home with your children.
